Attendance

If you miss more than six (6) fifty (50) minute sessions, your grade can be adversely affected. If you miss more than eight (8) fifty (50) minute sessions, I will have you dropped automatically from the class. While I might send you reminder letters on the number of classes you have missed, you are not to rely on these letters. It is your responsibility to keep track of your own absences.

PLEASE NOTE: The University of Tulsa is committed to providing services to students with disabilities. Students with disabilities who desire accommodations must apply for accommodation, with complete documentation, to the Center for Student Academic Support. Application must be made, and complete documentation provided, by the end of the eighth week of the semester for which accommodations are requested, or by the end of the second week of a summer session. Exceptions to these deadlines may be made in cases of injuries occurring after the deadlines. The Center for Student Academic Support is located at Homes Student Center, Room 59, phone (918) 631-2315.

Class Participation

Class participation is strongly encouraged. It can help your grade if there is a sufficient level of effective class participation. That level (number of times participating) will not be determined until the semester is over. Those who have participated above the level will automatically receive a one grade point increase in their final grade. Those who do not choose to participate above that level will receive the grade that they earn on the final exam. Participation is voluntary, not mandatory.
